VOLUME L PLACERVILLE, EL DORADO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, MAY 28, 1940 NUMBER 106

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

The May special session of the state Legislature, in addition to its specific accomplishments in coping with the complicated relief problem, rendered a service of first-rate importance to the people of California by an emphatic re-statement of fundamental, common-sense principles which had fallen into disuse during the "spend-ourselves-rich" era of black magic economies.

Recognizing that wealth and employment stem from private production and the whirl of industry—rather than from tax-supported doles and subsidies—the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee turned thumbs down on new taxes.

And getting back to basic principles, the committee appended to its report this simple, unmistakable declaration of policy:

"This committee is of the firm opinion that unemployment cannot be reduced until industry is encouraged to provide more jobs.

"As industry expands and provides more jobs, under the stimulus of moderate taxation, the urge for additional taxes to finance relief and unemployment insurance will be lessened and the State budget automatically brought into balance."

The Senate committee, headed by Senator John Phillips of Banning, concurred in the Assembly committee's action and went a step further by recommending a "Mobilization for Employment" plan, with the State becoming an aggressive leader in efforts to develop new markets, new products and new jobs.

Under the Phillips plan, business will be given to understand that it has but two choices—cooperation with the new re-employment program, or new taxes.

There can be little doubt of how agriculture, business and industry will respond to that program. The average farmer would far rather pay out money to farm hands in wages than to the tax collector in additional tax levies, and the same applies to business and industry. But tax roles, during the past decade, have absorbed a large part of the money that formerly went into pay-rolls—and neither the farmer nor the business man had any choice in the matter. He either paid the extortionate taxes demanded of him or abandoned ship and went on relief along with his neighbors.

The action of the bi-partisan economy bloc in the Legislature in forestalling the enactment of new taxes this year, while of considerable dollars-and-cents value to every taxpayer, it is not as important, in this writer's opinion, as the fact that the Legislature seems to be leading the way back to a new appreciation of fundamentals.

A succeeding Legislature could undo all the work of the 1940 Legislature by enacting burdensome taxes that would more than offset this year's temporary respite. But the fact that the Legislature is calling on the people to recognize that MONEY COMES FROM WORK and that it is better to let industry spend its money on pay-rolls than to contribute it to government for doles—that fact is of vital, lasting importance, for it signals a turning away from the "some for nothing" philosophy.

Farmers and taxpayers generally, however, need to keep a sharp eye on the trend in government budgets during the period just ahead. The Legislature's economy bloc stood its ground and is entitled to the appreciation and support of every taxpayer citizen. But in congress, the fight for economy has gone glimmering—and with the urgent need for adequate preparedness, which has been emphasized by the European war, advocates of economy may become just a voice crying in the wilderness.

No one who values the peace and security of America will oppose needed expenditures to enable this country to defend itself against any aggressor. But that need must not be made the excuse for another era of unbridled governmental spending; there should be rigid retrenchment in other departments of government to ease the burden. And much of the billion dollars a year now being spent for WPA, if it is properly handled, can be used in putting men to work in building up coast defense works, air bases and other defense essentials, instead of

STRAWBERRY OPENING TO BE INFORMAL, SAYS OWNER

One piece of mis-information which has been in circulation during the week is that the opening of Strawberry Resort, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week is to be a formal dress affair.

"Of course it doesn't call for formal dress," said Fred Baumhoff, owner of the resort. "Who wants to go vacationing in formal dress?"

"If anyone chooses to dress formally, I guess it will be all right but from my experience in visiting various resorts, most such occasions are informal and we are planning at Strawberry just to have a little something special by way of opening the resort."

Quints, 6 Years Old Will Get Hair Cuts

CALLANDER, Ont., (UP)—The Dionne quintuplets, Cecile, Yvonne, Emilie, Annette, and Marie, were six years old today. They celebrated with a joyous and noisy birthday party following a special mass at Dafoe Hospital.

The music of five new organs, gifts of a United States firm, helped the party along, and gave the girls a change from the piano, radio, and phonograph they have played previously.

Within a few days, it was said, the girls will have another new adventure—their first haircuts. Their long black tresses have never been trimmed, and are becoming a problem to their nurses and to photographers. Their hair is not naturally curly.

LEOPOLD LAYS DOWN ARMS

Belgian Collapse Adds To Troubles Of Allied Armies In Flanders

On Page Two of this issue will be found another United Press map of the region of current greatest activity in the European War.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

King Leopold surrendered the Belgian army today and Adolf Hitler's mechanized legions moved down the channel coast in an assault designed to deal a death blow to trapped Allied armies in Flanders.

The king's capitulation at the peak of the Nazi offensive was repudiated by the refugee Belgian cabinet in France, where Premier Hubert Pierlot announced that Leopold had been deprived of his throne and that the council of ministers would carry on beside the Allies.

While the Belgian collapse permitted the Germans to advance toward Bruges, Ostend and Dunkirk, the German offensive from the south squeezed the trapped armies tighter by an advance through the French fortifications near Valenciennes and the capture of Douai and Orchies, according to the Nazis.

The British admiralty has taken over management and control of all coast guard stations throughout Great Britain as part of the preparations to fight off an invading army.

There was much bitterness over Leopold's surrender, especially in Paris, but Churchill warned that he should not be judged hastily. It was reported in London that the Belgian monarch said his troops—about 400,000 to 500,000—had eaten only biscuits for four days and had in some cases fired their last ammunition.

Some Belgian refugee government leaders charged Leopold with being a traitor and said that his order would be defied.

being wasted in make-work projects as in the past.

There is an undoubted trend, at least in California, toward a return to sane, sound principles which will eventually lessen the tax burden and aid in putting the army of unemployed back to work. But that trend will continue just so long as taxpayers remain on the alert and demand its continuance. To guard your pocketbooks, watch your public officials.

ROSEVILLE BOYS DIE WHEN TRAPPED IN REFRIGERATOR

ROSEVILLE, (UP) — Police Chief Lou Allen today concluded that the accidental shutting of an ice box door, rather than foul play, caused two small boys to smother to death while playing.

The bodies of the children, Richard Payne, 8, and Bobby Richmond, 4, were found in the discarded ice box shortly before midnight by Robert Tyler, one of a group of townspeople and Legionnaires who conducted a seven hour search for the youngsters.

The ice box was tipped at such an angle, Allen said, that the doors would snap shut and lock. The boys were found in separate compartments and apparently had squeezed themselves into the box while playing then were unable to push open the locked doors.

TANK-CARRYING PLANES CLAIMED PART OF NAZI ARMAMENT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., (UP) — A German refugee told aeronautical engineers here today that the "secret weapon" Adolf Hitler was holding in reserve for the invasion of Great Britain consisted of a fleet of the world's largest airplanes, each capable of carrying a 30-ton tank.

The refugee, who fled Germany just before the outbreak of the war, said the planes were built in a camouflaged plant in the Black Forest, in the vicinity of his home.

He said 200 of the tank-carrying planes, larger than any of the commercial planes now in use in the United States, had been produced by September of last year.

The refugee said he feared reprisals for himself or members of his family if his name should be disclosed.

CRIMSON WARNING

by RICHARD SALE

© 1936 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Jane Hall, girl detective, is summoned to the home of Emery Harding on Skeleton Island, off the coast of Maine, to guard his daughter Audrey, whose life has been threatened in a letter, typewritten in red, demanding that Harding relinquish a valuable ruby he bought from an old sea captain, Albert Santrey. He also sends for Bruce Kirby, young museum curator. That night, Santrey is murdered—poisoned by a deadly snake's venom injected with a hypodermic needle. Then a servant, Drumm, is killed. Robert Castan, one of the house guests, is found snooping in Harding's room and is locked up, but escapes. About the time of his escape, Harding is attacked in the same manner as Santrey. He is treated with an antidote but his chances are very slim. Among the other house guests are Dr. Straater, family physician; Dr. Toler, snake expert; and Frank Bitherbee, Audrey's fiancé.

CHAPTER XXV

KIRBY went down the hall to Harding's room, and entered without knocking, startling both Straater and Toler, who were still sitting by the bed, watching over the patient.

Harding was still unconscious. He seemed scarcely to breathe and beads of sweat stood out on his face.

"Has he come around at all?" Kirby asked in a low voice. Dr. Straater shook his head. "No. It's touch and go. Frankly I don't think he'll last the night. Another injection of antivenin is necessary—and we haven't any."

Dr. Toler stood up. "Himmel! I am tired!"

"There's nothing you can do here," Dr. Straater told him. "You may as well go to bed. You, too, Kirby."

"Not I," said Kirby. "I'm standing guard."

"In that case," sighed Dr. Straater, "I'd like to catch a wink myself. My nerves are shot. There's nothing we can do unless he regains consciousness tonight—and I'm sure he won't."

"I'll stay with him," said Kirby. "Planning to last the whole night? You'll never do it. Bitherbee offered to watch, if necessary."

Kirby nodded. "You're right—I might doze. I'll go see if Bitherbee will relieve me."

HE WENT to Bitherbee's room and found him reading in bed.

"I'm going to watch Emery for a spell," Kirby told him. "Straater said you volunteered a vigil. Will you relieve me?"

"Sure thing, Kirby. Glad to What time?"

Kirby glanced at his watch. "It is one o'clock now. Say that I take from one to three. You take from three to five, and I'll relieve you at five."

"Good enough," Bitherbee said and added in an anxious voice "Is Mr. Harding any better at all?"

Kirby shook his head. "Straater doesn't think he'll live."

"Lord!"

"See you at three then," said Kirby, and left.

He returned to Harding's room. Toler had already left.

"If there's a turn for either good or bad," said Straater as he prepared to leave. "Let me know at once. Take his pulse at fifteen-minute intervals. You've a watch? Good. If the pulse drops below fifty, let me know. That's where it's been right along now. Watch his temperature, too."

"I'll handle it," said Kirby.

"Good night, then," said Dr.

Straater. He went out, closing the door after him. Kirby went to the French doors and locked them. Then he locked the hall door. After this, he went to the bed and stared down at the unconscious man. Not a muscle moving in the face. The chest hardly rising and falling from the intake and exhalation of breath. Kirby took the chair at the bedside and sat down to wait.

THE house was ominously silent. The only sound was a faint whine of wind under the overhanging eaves of the roof. It was an eerie whine, in that solitude Harding never moved. He just lay there, sweating.

It was half an hour later just after Kirby had finished taking the patient's pulse for the second time, to discover no change that three knocks sounded on the door. Their hollow resonance jerked Kirby from his chair. He half-slept at his nerves and moved quietly to the door.

"Who's there?" he asked softly. Jane's voice answered him. He unlocked the door and she slipped past him quickly. He closed the door and locked it again.

"I couldn't sleep," Jane said. "Kept thinking of things. Bruce what happened to the gun?"

"Your bean shooter you mean?" "No. I've got mine right here in my bag. You see now tenaciously it travels with me. I mean the gun you picked up when we found Drumm. The 32 pistol with the silencer."

Kirby put his hand in his pocket and drew it forth empty. "Oh, lord!" he muttered.

"Bruce," Jane said swiftly, "you haven't lost it!"

"Now let me think. I had it in my pocket wrapped in a handkerchief when we interviewed Mrs. Drumm. Then we came back to the house, came upstairs with Emery to see the ruby and found Castan in here. I remember now! I pulled the gun out and had it in my hand when I ran out on the terrace after Castan!"

"Then you must have dropped it when he struck you," said Jane. "It must be on the terrace."

KIRBY went to the French doors and unlocked them. He vanished onto the terrace. When he returned to the room locking the doors again, he had a white handkerchief in his hand—but no gun.

"Gone?" Jane whispered. "This handkerchief, which must have come out of my pocket when I pulled the gun, was lying out there, but the gun was gone. What an ass I've been! I completely forgot about the gun after Castan's attack. I dropped it, and either Castan or the killer—if they're not one and the same person—must have found it out there and retrieved it!"

Jane shrugged. "Well, there's nothing we can do about it now. I guess I'll go back to my room and try again to get some sleep."

"Yes," said Kirby. "Try to get all this business out of your head now. But keep your own little gun under your pillow!"

"I will," she promised.

After she had gone, Kirby again locked the door and settled down once more to his vigil. He took Harding's pulse, and found it to be fifty-five. Slightly better than before. He noticed also that the patient's breathing was better.

Kirby felt a wave of encouragement sweep through him. Then he sighed wearily. If only they had more serum!

Just before two, he heard soft padding footsteps in the hall. They went the length of the corridor and stopped. There was the sound of a knock on a door down the hall. Then silence.

Kirby stole to the door of Harding's room, quietly unlocked it, opened it a crack, and peered out.

Something New in Trick Mirrors

A new rear-view mirror that totally eliminates glare in night driving, without changing the field of vision, has just been made available to Chevrolet owners. This ingenious new device utilizes an optical principle in which two reflecting surfaces are provided by means of a wedge-shaped glass, the two surfaces of which are at a slight angle to each other. For daytime driving the rear-view image passes through the transparent front surface of the wedge and is reflected in a normal manner from the inner surface, which is silver-plated. If the prism were left in this position for night driving, headlights approaching from the rear would glare in the driver's eyes as in the ordinary rear-view mirror, as shown in the top photo. By moving the adjustable element within the fixed frame a fraction of an inch, the glare is thrown upward and the outer surface comes into position, giving the driver an unobstructed and unchanged view without glare, as illustrated in the lower photo.

PLUM CROP WILL NOT SUFFER LACK OF MARKETS AS RESULT OF WAR IN EUROPE, SAYS COUNTY FARM ADVISOR

Although the European war is likely to curtail seriously exports of a number of California fruits, it apparently will have little effect on shipments of this year's plum crop, according to I. W. Lilley, farm advisor representing the University of California Agricultural Extension Service in El Dorado County. His analysis of the plum export situation is based on information received from S. W. Shear, fruit economist on the University's Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics. Lilley said, "Loss of the European market can directly reduce the

BARLEY GROWERS MAY SHARE IN FARM LOAN PROGRAM

Barley growers in this and other producing areas of the state look forward to better prospects for the coming marketing season as a result of the federal loan program recently announced on both farm-stored and ware-housed barley. El Dorado county AAA officials point out that loans will be made by the Commodity Credit Corporation in all barley producing areas of the nation, to any producer; whose 1940 total acreage of soil-depleting crops does not exceed the total soil-depleting allotment or permitted acreage established for the farm under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program. Rates to local producers on the basis of farm storage are 35c per bushel for No. 1 grade; 34c for No. 2; 32c for No. 3; 29c for No. 4; 25c for No. 5. A discount of 2c per bushel will be made for mixed barley. Tough, stained, blighted, smutty, garlicky, weevily, ergoty or bleached barley will not be eligible for loans. No storage will be made for farm-stored barley. Warehouse loans are 7c per bushel less than if the barley is farm-stored, with storage of collateral in approved warehouses only.

PIONEER COUNTY FAMILY HAS REUNION AT ELMIRA

ELMIRA—Six persons whose ages total 445 years, descendants of a pioneer El Dorado County family, attended a family reunion in the home of Mrs. J. R. Barnes. The six children of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Riebsam of El Dorado County who were present are: Ada, Elizabeth, Henrietta and Frederick Riebsam of San Jose, 71, 76, 78 and 80 years of age, respectively, and Mrs. Emma Perdue of Elmira and Mrs. Ella Carsten of Sacramento, the latter pair 80 year old twins. Mrs. Perdue and Mrs. Carsten were born in the gold town of Spanish Camp in 1860. Their parents settled in El Dorado County in 1852 after coming west by covered wagon. Mrs. Perdue is the mother of Mrs. Barnes, and Mrs. Carsten is the mother of Mrs. A. A. Thomas of Sacramento.

FORMER SHINGLE MAN IS DROWNED IN DREDGER ACCIDENT

SACRAMENTO — The body of Varis Schance, 32, winchman on the General Dredging Company's drag-line near Folsom was recovered on Sunday after six hours and forty minutes after the derrick tipped over, slipped from its pontoon and sank in thirty feet of water. Schance was alone in the derrick cabin but four other employees, Foreman Henry Coval, Guy M. Hause, Francis Schrader and E. M. Lee, were on the bank. Schance was unable to swim. It was necessary to move 5,000 yards of soil and gravel to drain the pond to recover the body. Deputy Coroner Louis McGinnis reported that although a brace fell across Schance, pinning his body down, it was apparent the man drowned rather than succumbed to injuries. The body was taken to the W. F. Gormley and Sons funeral home and funeral services were held Tuesday with interment at East Lawn under auspices of the Oak Park Aerie of Eagles. Schance leaves a son, William, 5. His wife, Mrs. Mabel Schance, died in Shingle Springs four years ago. Schance resided at 2607 30th St., Sacramento.

Mrs. Ralph McGee's Mother Succumbs In Amador

SUTTER CREEK—Funeral services were held in Jackson Saturday for Mrs. Harriet Marchant, 72, who died here in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph McGee. Mrs. Marchant leaves another daughter, Miss Maude Marchant of Oakland; a son, Luther B. Marchant, dean of the school of music at Mills College, and a sister, Mary Brusie of San Francisco. Interment was at Ione.

PIEROVICH MUST RUN TO CONTINUE AS JUDGE IN AMADOR COUNTY

SACRAMENTO—Attorney General Earl Warren has ruled Superior Judge A. L. Pierovich, former state senator who was appointed by Governor Culbert L. Olson to fill a vacancy on the bench in Jackson, Amador County, must be a candidate in the August primary election as well as in the general balloting next fall if he desires to remain a judge. The attorney general also advised Pierovich the election will be for a full six year term and not for the balance of the unexpired term of his predecessor.

Telephone Company Files Tax Protest Suit

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has filed suit in Superior Court against El Dorado County, praying for the collection of $1,628.60 of their tax bill allegedly improperly assessed and paid by them under protest.

Directors of the Placerville Baseball Club are scheduled to meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the El Dorado Chamber of Commerce headquarters. Bolstering the Barts' pitching staff is to be the major subject for discussion according to President Dr. R. L. Hosking.

Humanitarian-Scientist
Is "Fireman" To You

HULL, Mass., (UP)—"Firemen" no longer is the correct name for men who fight fires, according to Fire Chief Selden R. Allen of Brookline. Because they work on automobile accidents, drownings and "certain illnesses," he told 500 firemen at a "smoke" talk, they should be called "humanitarian-scientists."

A declaration of their intention to wed was filed Saturday at Auburn by Cecil V. Butler, 22, of Roseville, and Pearl Veerkamp, 19, of Penryn. The bride-apparent is a daughter of Adolph Veerkamp and a grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Veerkamp, of Missouri Flat.

$700,000,000 DEFENSE
TAXES TO BE ASKED OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration will ask the present session of congress for new national defense taxes yielding up to $700,000,000 a year and a $3,000,000,000 increase in the national debt limit. This was announced today in a joint statement by congressional leaders, including Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the house ways and means committee and Chairman Pat Harrison of the senate finance committee, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. The announcement followed a three-hour conference in Morgenthau's office. The statement said that President Roosevelt had been advised of the conferees' conclusions and had approved the program.

COLLEGE GIVES LIGHTING
GUIDE FOR USE IN HOME

AMHERST, Mass., (UP)—A man needs as much light for shaving as his wife does for powdering her nose but their son studying his lessons requires twice as much. If the wife takes up the family mending, the amount of light should be tripled. Thus advises Mrs. Harriet Haynes, home management specialist at the Massachusetts State College, in a better lighting campaign. She reports from her research that prolonged sewing requires 50 to 100 foot candles of light, or approximately the illumination shed by a 60 watt lamp at a distance of one foot.

For the children's study table Mrs. Haynes suggests 20 to 50 foot candles of light. And to illuminate those daily attempts at facial beautification, the bathroom mirror and dressing table should have 10 to 30 foot candles.

Burger Knows Gems . . .

May birthstone, is the dark green variety of the mineral BERYL, hard, but brittle. Although huge beryl crystals in various colors (and colorless) have been found, the Emeralds green, the flawless of good color are extremely rare—finest today from Colombia, S. A.—Russia also produced some fine ones, many owned by the Czars—Cleopatra owned an emerald mine, Egypt. Emerald is the emblem of love and immortality and was used to prevent eye trouble.
